

AN UNSETTLED WORLD—Newsmag, above, gives a secretary-of-state's eye view of the leading trouble spots around the globe, some in eruption, some just festering for the time being. Of most immediate concern is the Tunisian situation, which has just brought about the fall of another French government. Still hot is the revolt in Indonesia. And the ever-present Russian propaganda pressures can be expected to increase when North American Treaty Organization ministers meet with Secretary Dulles in Copenhagen May 5.

Blackman Elected County Board Head

Defeats Field; Names Fiscal Year Committees

C. L. Blackman, Stonefort Republican, was elected chairman of the Saline County Board of Supervisors for the fiscal year starting this month at an organization meeting Saturday at the court house.

Blackman, elected by a vote of 12 to 8 over Raymond Field (R, Carrier Mills), succeeds Kenneth Jackson (R, Long Branch). Republicans hold a 12-10 majority on the 22-man board.

County Clerk J. E. Rose called the meeting to order and asked for nominations. Charles Pritchett (R, Carrier Mills) nominated Field for board chairman and this nomination was seconded by Jackson.

There followed a discussion on use of a secret ballot to elect a chairman. Ivan Wilson (D, Eldorado) reminded that at its last meeting the board had voted to hold the chairman election by secret ballot.

Opinion Read
Jackson then had Atty. George B. Lee read an opinion given by Attorney General Otto Kerner in 1933 in which Kerner said it was his opinion a board of supervisors could not elect a chairman or other officers by secret ballot, that it would be against public policy.

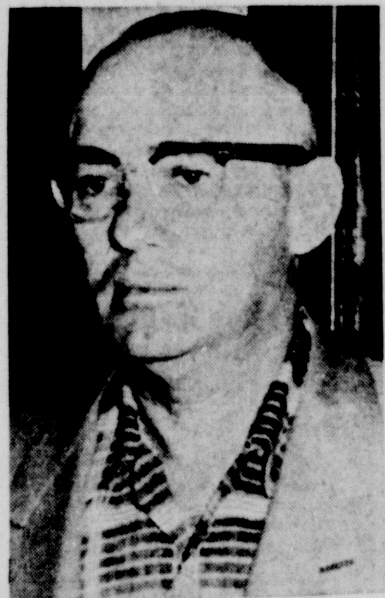

Wilson said he did not believe the opinion was applicable to the local case and quoted from Robert's Rules of Order. However, after considerable discussion an open election was inaugurated.

Herman McFarlin (R, Independence) nominated Blackman and this nomination was seconded by A. K. Gates (R, Cottage). Roll Call Vote
The roll call showed the following voting for Blackman: Grover Dale Fulkerson (D Harrisburg), Bert Gogue (D Brushy), Aubrey Giles (D Eldorado), A. K. Gates (R Cottage), Bert Jones (D Rantoul), Claude Moore (D Eldorado), Roy Moore (D Eldorado), Tom Maxwell (D Eldorado), Herman McFarlin (R Independence), John Slightom (D Harrisburg) and Ivan Wilson (D Eldorado), and Mr. Blackman (R Stonefort).

Voting present were Lee Porter (D Rector) and Mr. Field (R Carrier Mills).

The Committees
Blackman announced his committees as follows:

C. L. Blackman

committees as follows (the committee chairman listed first):

Finance: Wilson, Porter, McFarlin.
Road and Bridge: McFarlin, Field, C. Moore.

Claims: Maxwell, Jones, Land, Fees and Salaries: Jackson, Ferrell, C. Moore.

Purchasing: R. Moore, Giles, Patterson.

TB: McFarlin, Pritchett, Maxwell.

Education: Porter, Slightom, Smith.

Reports: Fields, Gates, Gogue.
Election: Fulkerson, Gogue, Skaggs.

Poor Farm: C. Moore, Fulkerson, Smith.
Regional Planning: Field, Patterson, Jones.

Following the election Chairman Blackman called on Virgil Ferrell to lead in prayer, after which Dr. Slightom presented a Bible to the county board and made a motion a permanent chaplain open every meeting with prayer. Blackman appointed Ferrell the chaplain.

Auditor's Report
A lengthy report was made by Auditor George Cavalia of the Peoria Audit Bureau, giving audit figures on the county offices, saying that he found things in good shape for the fiscal year which ended last December. The audit was for one year on all offices except county clerk and he extended the audit there to March 24, the time of the death of Clerk Don B. Garrison.

"I am well-pleased with the turn-out of the offices the past year," he stated. "The county clerk's office showed vast improvement over the past few years. I always had recommended that one person be responsible for the cash book in this office but it hadn't been done. During the past year of the term

Rep. Clabaugh Found Guilty In Anna Sale

Fined $100, Charge Selling Window Screens to Hospital

SPRINGFIELD — State Rep. Charles W. Clabaugh today was found guilty of "conflict of interest" charges in connection with a contract for $800 worth of window screens for the Anna State hospital and was fined $100 and costs.

Circuit Judge De Witt S. Crow overruled a motion to dismiss the charges which he had taken under advisement at the close of Clabaugh's trial Thursday, and then found him guilty and imposed the fine.

Clabaugh, Champaign Republican, is chairman of the state Schools Problems Commission. His attorney, Joseph Londrigan, indicated he would have to study the decision before deciding whether to appeal.

The maximum penalty under the law is a $1,000 fine.

Clabaugh was charged with violating a law that bars state officials from dealing directly or indirectly in state contracts.

In overruling the motion to dismiss the charges Crow cited Londrigan's trial arguments that the conflict of interest law applied only to printing and stationery contracts and said there was "some doubt" that the law could be so interpreted. The doubt would have to be resolved in favor of the state, he said.

Crow said from his study of the case it appeared that a contract had existed between Clabaugh and the state hospital and that Clabaugh had a financial interest in the contract, even though it was not consummated and Clabaugh did not receive any money.

Sangamon County State's Atty. J. Waldo Ackerman based his case against Clabaugh on a series of 19 letters between Clabaugh, the hospital and the screen supplier.

Some of the letters notified Clabaugh that his Champaign Metal Weather Strip Co. was low bidder on the screen replacement job at the hospital and asked him to proceed with the work.

Pass $200,000 Bad Checks, Use Auto Jobbing Agency as Front

PEORIA — Police disclosed that three men have passed more than $200,000 in bad checks in little more than a month and may have passed more.

Using an auto jobbing agency as a front, the three men, believed to be Chicagoans, moved about $189,000 in bad checks to a Peoria bank and as much as $32,000 to a Rock Island bank.

Known only as James Jensen, James Bertram Kelly and Louis Lurie, the men established a Sabre Motor Co. in Peoria early in March. The company closed "quickly and quietly" last week, authorities said.

Upon arrival, the men deposited $12,000 in a Peoria bank and QUEEN OF BROKEN HEARTS—Beauteous Soraya, ex-queen of Iran, is en route to the United States aboard the liner SS Constitution from Genoa, Italy. Listed simply on the ship's roster as a "housewife," the 25-year-old Soraya was divorced by the Shah because she bore him no male heir, which is required under Moslem law. The broken-hearted ex-queen, who says she "will always love the Shah," reportedly has been forbidden to speak of her private life with the Shah, under the terms of the divorce agreement. It is believed that the Shah gave her $140,000, a monthly pension of $4,200 and allowed her to keep several million dollars' worth of jewels.

U. S. Has Backing Against Russ Charges Our H-Bomb Carriers Threaten to Start World War

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—The United States has mustered overwhelming support of U. N. Security Council members today against Soviet charges that U. S. bombers laden with hydrogen bombs threaten to start World War III by flying toward Russia.

The Security Council was called into session to hear the complaint made on Friday by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko. American officials expected any Soviet resolution denouncing the United States would be beaten by a 9 to 1 Security Council vote.

Soviet representative Arkady A. Sobolev was taking the rostrum first to demand "urgent measures to put an end to flight by U. S. military aircraft armed with atomic and hydrogen bombs in the direction of the frontiers of the Soviet Union."

Speech Carefully Documented
U. S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., backed by experts of the Strategic Air Command, and the Defense and State Departments, planned to answer Sobolev with a carefully documented speech that would refute Gromyko's charges the flights were "provocative."

Members of the Security Council were prepared to go into an extraordinary night session if necessary to wind up the question as soon as possible. Lodge, Security Council president for the month of April, was reported to have the backing of Canada, China, Colombia, France, Iraq, Japan, Panama and Britain, current members of the Council besides Russia.

State police said the car apparently crashed into the side of the truck, and the truck overturned onto the car, pinning one of the girls inside.

Big Plane Left Los Angeles for New York City

Wreckage Spread Over Area of About One Square Mile

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — A United Air Lines four-engine DC7 with 46 persons aboard collided with a jet fighter plane over the desert south of here shortly after 9 a. m. today and crashed.

The collision occurred at approximately 28,000 feet.

Denny Schieck, a photographer from the Las Vegas Review-Journal, an eyewitness to the crash said he saw a white puff of smoke, followed by a flash. A black plume of smoke billowed out of the wreckage as the two planes plummeted earthward and landed in the desert 10 miles apart.

A Civil Aeronautics Administration spokesman said wreckage of the four-engine commercial liner was "spread over an area about a mile square."

Schieck said he saw a parachute blossom out after the collision and it was believed the pilot of the jet had escaped. A spokesman at Nellis Air Force Base said it was presumed the jet was an F100 from Nellis.

The UAL plane had left Los Angeles International Airport on a flight to New York with a scheduled stop at Denver.

At Chicago, United Air Lines said any information on the passenger list would be released there, but that it would probably be "a couple of hours" before it was available.

UAL said the flight was No. 736. Sheriff's officers said the rocky terrain where the planes crashed was inaccessible except by using jeeps and horses and was some 10 miles southwest of Las Vegas. Smoke from the burning wreckage could be seen from the downtown area.

The isolated, remote area was some 20 miles east of the mountain area where another crash carried to death actress Carole Lombard in 1942. She had been on route home after appearing in a war bond sale in New York.

This Calls for the Hard Sell

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND by DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: U.S.A. and USSR come closer through cultural exchange; Adlai Stevenson quips at his lack of hair; Mississippi governor fights White Citizens Councils.

WASHINGTON. — Events which five years ago would have been considered unbelievable occurred in Moscow and New York this week. They illustrated the new look in American - Russian relations.

In New York, a jam-packed crowd filled the Metropolitan Opera House as 1,500 waited in the street outside to cheer the Moiseyev ballet. Russian youngsters romped over the stage in wild, beautiful native dances, got curtain call after curtain call. The Soviet flag hung beside the stars and stripes. Tickets sold for $15 apiece, yet were unobtainable. The Opera House is sold out for a solid three weeks.

Simultaneously, in Moscow a young Texan received roaring plaudits from a Russian crowd. Thousands stormed the concert hall to hear Van Cliburn, son of an oil company official, play his way into the hearts of the Russian people and come off with top honors in the International Tchaikovsky piano contest.

Simultaneously in Washington, John Foster Dulles charged that Russia had "debauched" and "prostituted" diplomatic machinery for propaganda purposes. His bitter words, which referred to the Bulganin - Khrushchev notes demanding a summit conference, sent our official relations with Russia to a new low just as our unofficial relations with Russia on the concert and dance stage reached a new high.

Mr. Dulles may be so close to his own old-fashioned type of diplomacy that he may not realize the new modern diplomacy of people-to-people friendship in winning victories in preventing war. For the crowds that cheered Van Cliburn of Kilgore, Tex., or saw him on television or heard him praised in the Russian press, he did not easily answer a call to fight the United States.

ADLAI'S BARREN BEAN

Ed Foley, former Undersecretary of the Treasury who put across the big $100-plate dinner for Truman, wrote a letter to Adlai Stevenson thanking him for playing second fiddle by speaking in the lower room of the Sheraton Park hotel while Truman spoke in the main ballroom.

"You saved my scalp," wrote Foley. Stevenson, who has more humor than he has hair, wrote back: "I saved your scalp. Then how about giving me a piece of it. I need it more than you."

FIGHTING MISSISSIPPI GOVERNOR

Northerners usually associate Mississippi with cotton, colored people, the late routin'-tootin' Senator Bilbo, and cigar-chewing Sen. Jim Eastland. What northerners don't know is that Mississippi has developed one of the outstanding governors of the South—J. P. Coleman, now staging a vigorous battle to prevent the White Citizens Councils from becoming official propaganda agents of Mississippi cities and counties.

The Mississippi legislature has been discussing plans to raise around $200,000, then turn it over to the White Citizens Councils for propaganda to combat integration. This would make the White Citizens Councils an official arm of the state of Mississippi.

Governor Coleman, battling the legislature against the measure, warned: "We are repeating step by step the same performance that destroyed us once before."

He pointed out that the job of running the state of Mississippi must be in the hands of officials elected by the people and subject to their recall, not private groups unanswerable to the people and not required to account to the government for money spent.

What Coleman fears is that the White Citizens Councils will first become official propaganda agencies of the state, then be given law-enforcement power, so that

Matter of FACT

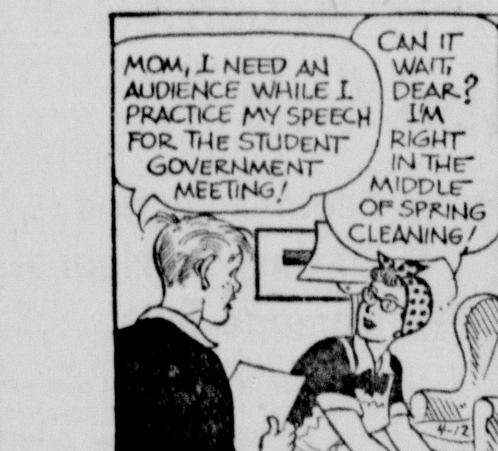

At its beginning, the American Revolution was a revolt against the unjust and tyrannical practices of the colonial administrations. The rebellion was to correct those abuses, but its leaders still meant to keep the colonists within the British Empire. Early in 1776, Thomas Paine wrote a stirring argument for independence which turned the tide of public opinion strongly toward separation from England.

Small Business Legislation Up Before Group

Supplemental Unemployment Benefit Bill Moving

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gov. Averell Harriman of New York called today for an anti-recession tax cut, "a large and diversified program of public works" and Federal Reserve Board purchase of "several billion dollars" of government bonds to fight the recession.

The Democratic governor said the Eisenhower administration must bear the blame for the recession. He said it must now "face the facts, tell the people the truth and act positively and convincingly" or lose a vital battle in the cold war with Communism.

Harriman made his recommendations in testimony prepared for delivery before the House Banking and Currency Committee.

Commerce Secretary Sinclair Weeks earlier attacked certain top-level congressional Democrats for "deliberately plotting" to exaggerate the seriousness of the business downturn and intimidate consumers.

Certain Selfish Plotters

In a week-end speech at a GOP rally in Skowhegan, Me., Weeks said he believed rank-and-file Democrats like Republicans sympathized with the unemployed.

"But I do charge," he said, "certain strategists of the opposition with deliberately plotting for selfish partisan advantage to talk people into the jitters."

Elsewhere on Capitol Hill, the House Ways and Means Committee was prepared to give final approval of a bill going far beyond President Eisenhower's recommendations for supplemental unemployment benefits.

At the same time, the Senate Banking Committee turned to small business legislation—another item on the anti-recession program of Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson.

Nelson Rockefeller, head of a panel study of the nation's economy, issued a report calling for an immediate five to seven-billion-dollar tax cut.

The report of the Rockefeller Brothers Fund, Inc., made public Sunday night, urged reductions in both personal and corporation income taxes as part of a six-point program to stimulate business and employment.

Karl Andersen Rites Held at Greeley, Colo.

Funeral services for Karl Q. Andersen, 62, merchant at Estes Park, Colo., whose death was reported early last week, were held last Wednesday afternoon from Macey funeral home in Greeley, and interment was at Sunset Memorial Gardens.

The Rev. Frederick Hyslop of the First Congregational church was in charge and military services were conducted by the Estes Park American Legion post.

Mr. Andersen died Sunday, April 13, at Weld County General hospital in Greeley.

Born on a ranch southeast of Eaton, Mr. Andersen was the son of Anton Andersen and the former Laura Loy. He was educated in Eaton schools and served in the first World War for two years. He joined the Marines in 1917. He was awarded the French Croix de Guerre and Palm Leaf and six other medals for bravery under fire.

He held a life membership in the Disabled American Veterans. He was a member of the Elks lodge at Greeley and the Lions club and Chamber of Commerce of Estes Park. He also belonged to the Big Thompson Canon association, American Legion and 40 and 8.

He is survived by his wife, the former Mary Gaskins of Harrisburg; a sister, Mrs. Nellie Eaton of Greeley and three brothers, Arthur and Sam Andersen, ranchers near Ault, Colo., and George, county commissioner, residing at Greeley.

Among the relatives at the funeral services were:

Louie Gaskins and Mrs. Mitsdarffer are brother and sister of Mrs. Andersen.

Pall bearers were: Arthur King of Eaton; Wesley King of Greeley; Jim Conant of Estes Park; Bert Brown, Dr. H. A. Stewart, Peter Berkeley and U. S. Commissioner Harold Oakes of Denver.

Thirty-one others served as honorary pall bearers.

one person was made responsible and this was an improvement." Other action: Molinarolo's Proposal

County Clerk Rose was appointed municipal retirement agent and his bond was approved at $5,000 as agent.

John Molinarolo Jr., licensee of the Molinarolo Package Store at Muddy, asked the board to take action so that the county clerk could issue cards, carrying photo of the person, to verify ages of young people who come into the store.

"We don't want to sell to minors and do everything we know to keep from doing so," he stated. "I believe the most foolproof method of knowing is for the county clerk to issue a card giving the age from a birth certificate and having the person's picture on the card so it won't be transferable."

The board postponed action to study the matter.

The board passed a resolution authorizing the county superintendent of highways to acquire land for right-of-way for a proposed hard-surfaced road from Carrier Mills to Route 145, and if compensation is not agreed upon, to start condemnation proceedings.

Thinking It Over

By Robert L. Dieffenbacher D. D.
(Written for NEA Service)

WATER will not boil without heat. Walking requires movement of the legs or feet. Even talking takes muscular activity. Energy is required to achieve any result. We must expend some energy for every worthwhile response. We take this for granted even in a nation where some people hope to win quiz shows or prizes in contests with comparatively little effort.

When it comes to our sharing in the benefits of the spirit we seem to feel that God ought to shower us with gifts or rewards entirely at His own effort. We overlook the fact that even repetitive prayer takes some human effort.

If we expect to make headway toward the goal of Heaven, we must put a lot of human energy into the program of spiritual effort. It takes a lot of prayer if

See Southern Illinois First

By John W. Allen
Southern Illinois University
There is no quarrel with the slogan, "See America First." To do that, however, takes more time and money than some can afford. Therefore, why not change the slogan, shorten the time, cut down on expenses and "See Southern Illinois First"? This would appear appropriate now that the birds have begun their spring songs and many persons are having a recurrence of the old malady known as the itching foot, that urge to get out and go somewhere. But, where?

In any part of Southern Illinois, or in fact, anywhere, it is not necessary to go far to find something of interest. A day or even a half-day's drive often will ease the itching foot; or make it worse. Which ever happens, it doesn't cost much either in time or money, and it may add to an appreciation of things near at hand. During the next weeks we want to suggest a few short tours in different localities and list some points of interest on each.

Find Interesting Points

The traveler may stop to see all the points listed or only those that are of particular interest to him. He also may find other points equally interesting and not listed. These tours may be taken in either direction or, when necessary, one may "cut across" and shorten them. Since any trip must begin somewhere, the first one is begun at the lookout above Big Kincaid Creek about six miles west of Murphysboro on Route 13.

From this viewpoint one looks down on the creek a short way up from the place where it joins Big Muddy River. Now a small, muddy-banked stream, it once was large enough to rate a ferry about where the bridge now is. In very early days flatboats were loaded "at the mouth of the Kincaid." William Boone, cousin of Daniel, loaded the first one of record there in December 1811, just in time to have it on the Mississippi during the New Madrid earthquake. His boat survived and successfully completed its journey.

Last Home for Illinois Indians

About a half mile beyond Kincaid bridge a bronze marker on the south side of the highway points the location of the Kaskaskia Reservation, last home in the state for the Illinois Indians and the place from which they left for Kansas about 1832. If one wishes to visit the site of the reservation he may turn back a short distance to the roadway that leads south from the bridge and pass through Sand Ridge, oldest existing village in Jackson county. No use looking there for the cotton gin, however, for it has been gone 90 years.

Back on Route 3 it is not far to the north end of Big Hill, where a side road leads to Gorham, out of which one may go on a gravel road southwest to Fountain Bluff, noted picnic ground 80 or more years ago. On the face of the bluff a quarter mile east from the picnic ground is the finest collection of Indian Carvings in the state.

Returning to Route 3 and continuing south past the Boone Cemetery, hidden on the hillside and suggesting several stories of early Jackson county, the next point of interest is an old double log house called the Henson House. This house was built by Allen Henson who had been scalped by the Indians and wore a patch of bare skull to old age. Tradition has the south room of the house built in 1808. Amateur checking of tree rings convinces the writer that the date is correct.

Few Homes Remain

West around the south end of the long hill is the site of an early blockhouse that was built as a defense against the Indians in the War of 1811-12. The road turns south near the place on the Mississippi where several barges and at least one steamboat were built. Red Town comes next. Only three or four of the houses that once were homes for more than a thousand persons are left standing.

West one sees the tower that carries a gas pipeline across the river. The huge rock near the tower is the Devil's bake oven, noted landmark for Mississippi steamboat pilots. On and against this rock are the foundations of a one time fine residence, the place where the maiden "pined away and died because she could not see her lover. Lore has it that her wraith-like figure still floats about the rock and, on wild nights, may be heard to shriek. A detachment of soldiers camped here in 1850 while attempting to rid the river of pirates.

South from the Oven and through a missing vertebra in the Devil's Back Bone is the site of the once prosperous iron works with their many coke furnaces. At the south end of the Back Bone is the place where the greatest Indian massacre in the state of Illinois took place. From this same place an excellent view may be had of Tower Rock or the Rock of the Cross, rich in history and legend.

View of Bluff

South of Grand Tower past the site of the lower furnace and thru painful evidences of a decaying village one returns to Route 3 and soon reaches the Big Muddy River at the place where a locomotive fell through the railway bridge and carried its crew to death in the river. Here one may turn west and have a wonderful approaching view of the bluff, about 300 feet high. At the bluff one may turn left and go over the top of Pine Hills or right and go along the foot of the cliff where spring comes first in southern Illinois. Along this roadway one may see strange plants, striking rock formations, beaver dams and perhaps a hut or two. If he gets out and looks closely he may even see a snake. The road leads back to Route 3 near Aldridge.

Sorry, space is used up and the 100 mile trip projected is only half done.

One Loses Shirt, Another Pants At Baseball Game

CHICAGO AP—A young baseball fan lost his shirt at Wrigley Field during Sunday's Chicago Cubs-St. Louis Cardinals baseball game, and moments later another lost his trousers.

Both were victims of a grasping escalator belt.

Roger Raylor, 8, was going down for pop corn during the ninth inning when his shirt became entangled. Authorities had to cut off his shirt and jacket to free him.

Roger was treated for arm bruises at Illinois Masonic hospital.

Seconds later, Pat O'Brien, 12, stepped on the escalator backwards. His belt got caught in the mechanism and Pat lost his pants before he was freed. He was last seen leaving the park with a Cubs baseball jacket draped about his middle.

Big Day For Musial

Manly Stanley Hits 2 Homers, Cardinals Win

First Red Bird Win; Ted Williams Having Troubles

By FRED DOWN
United Press Sports Writer

Stan Musial and Ted Williams are sharing the headlines again today—Musial because he's off to one of his best starts and Williams because he's off to one of his worst.

The 37-year-old Musial finally got the St. Louis Cardinals into the win column Sunday when he knocked in four runs with a pair of two-run homers in a 9-4 victory over the previously unbeaten Chicago Cubs. He's collected 10 hits, including four homers, in five games for a .435 average.

The 39-year-old Williams, meanwhile, went hitless in four trips as the Boston Red Sox suffered their fifth defeat in six games—a 10-inning, 6-5 loss to the Washington Senators. Williams' average is now an inglorious .000 after seven futile at bats.

In other major developments:—Bob Turley's four-hitter enabled the New York Yankees to beat the Baltimore Orioles, 7-0, for their fifth win in six games.

—Robin Roberts beat the Milwaukee Braves, 3-2, and equalled Grover Cleveland Alexander's record of 190 wins by a Philadelphia Phillies' pitcher.

4 More Over the Fence

—Four more "little league homers" were hit in the controversial Los Angeles Coliseum as the Giants butchered the Dodgers, 12-2.

Musial softened up Jim Brosnan, who shut out the Cardinals on opening day, with a two-run homer in the first inning and blasted another during the Cardinals' four-run fifth-inning rally. Don Blasingame had three hits for the Cardinals who had lost four straight games to the Cubs.

Roy Sievers broke up the Boston-Washington game when he hit Murray Wall's first pitch in the 10th inning into the left field bleachers. Sievers also had a triple and a double and Norm Zauchner homered for the Senators, who share second place in the American League with Kansas City.

Turley walked seven batters but struck out eight as he became the fourth Yankee pitcher to go the distance and the second to pitch a shutout. Yankee pitchers now have yielded a total of eight runs and 37 hits in six games—by far the best pitching record in the majors. Norm Siebern homered and Mickey Mantle and Gil McDougald had two hits each for the Yankees.

Roberts Rebounds

Roberts, seeking to rebound from last year's 10-22 campaign, struck out four, yielded five hits and walked none in addition to contributing three singles to the Phillies' attack. The Braves scored both their runs in the seventh inning when Hank Aaron and Harry Hanebrink homered. Bob Rush suffered the loss in his first appearance for the world champions.

Danny O'Connell hit two homers, Daryl Spencer collected a homer, double and single and Willie Mays had a triple and two singles to lead the Giants' 15-hit attack on Don Drysdale and two successors. Ramon Montant, kayoed by the Dodgers last Wednesday, came back to pitch an eight-hitter and yielded both Los Angeles runs on a homer by Carl Furillo. The crowd of 47,234 made a total of 167,209 for the three-game series in the Coliseum.

The Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the Cincinnati Redlegs, 4-3, in the other National League game while Kansas City dealt the Chicago White Sox an 8-2 beating and the Cleveland Indians hit four homers to down the Detroit Tigers, 4-2, in other American League activity.

R. C. Stevens Stars

Rookie first-baseman R. C. Stevens, who singled home the Pirates' winning run in their only other victory this season, homered off Willard Schmidt in the ninth for the decisive blow Sunday. The Redlegs had tied the score in the top of the ninth when Vada Pinson doubled and scored from third on a sacrifice fly by George Crowe.

Bill Tuttle and Billy Hunter hit three-run homers for the Athletics, who got five-hit pitching from Jack Urban in handing the White Sox their third loss in five games. In contrast to the Yankees, White Sox pitchers have been rocked for 27 runs and 57 hits in five games. Chicago manager Al Lopez protested the game on the basis of an "interference play" in the fourth inning.

by ED LACY

XXV

I WALKED over to Lexington Ave. and took the subway to Brooklyn, excitement mounting in me. It was a small savings bank and the manager looked as if he'd just been plucked from a fireside, a little on the sleepy side. I'd give odds he was wearing one of those old-fashioned, detachable, hard collars. He gave me the usual song and dance about it being most "irregular" to give out the info I wanted. I told him it was also "irregular" to kill ex-cops.

From his records and the code number of the $4,000.75 check on the deposit slip he told me it was drawn on the Capital Exchange Bank & Trust but he had no way of knowing which branch. I showed both pictures to the tellers and a tall, slick-looking colored woman said she was "pretty sure" Owens was Francis Parker.

While I checked the Brooklyn address Francis Parker had given when he opened the account—and found it to be phony—the manager compared Parker's signature card with Ed Owens' lodge card. We didn't have to be handwriting experts to see they were the same—a cramped way of writing "a" and "e."

I went back to downtown Manhattan, to the head office of the Capital Bank & Trust, and ran into trouble. I was bucked from one stuffed shirt official to another, each insisting on a court order or a note from the D. A. But finally I landed in the office of the top banana. He was a plump little joker with a butter-ball face clear as a baby's rear, a pointed waxed mustache, and a good gray wig that took me a lot of minutes to make.

He examined my badge as if it was a work of art, said, "I don't see any harm in helping you, Detective. However if we have such a check, perhaps we'll have to notify the signer that we have given you the information. I'll see what our legal department has to say. First we'll see if there is such a check."

"It was deposited on April 5." "Then we paid out the money on the sixth or seventh. Take at least 20 minutes," he said, getting his secretary on the intercom phone, giving her the information. Then he leaned back in his chair and gave me a happy look as he said, "As it happens I'm a rabid detective story fan. Read a book a night, best way I know to relax. Only thing I liked about F. D. R., he was a detective fan too."

I said, "Look, in a book or a movie the crime is rigged because the writer invents all the angles—usually in favor of the crook."

"Nonsense, these books prove crime doesn't pay."

I WENT along, trying not to laugh at this big executive who sounded like a comic book reader. "Let me give you a tip, lads can help but there's still nothing been invented good as a stoolie. This honor among thieves is strictly for the birds—and the books."

"Stoolies?" the bank man said, disgust on his fat face. "That seems ugly, unfair—"

His secretary came in and placed a slip of paper before him. She was one of these tall, classy-looking babes. Big boy picked up his phone and went into a long conversation with somebody—probably in the legal department. This somebody kept advising him not to give out the information. My detective fan kept countering with, "I'm not questioning your knowledge of the law, Maxwell, but we are helping the police. . . . Sure, but it's part of the bank's duty to the public. . . . All right, I'll come down to your office."

He stood up as he told me, "Our legal boys lean toward the conservative side, naturally. They say we could find ourselves in a lawsuit and at the wrong end of some publicity by giving you this information. You wait here. I'll be back in five or ten minutes."

He was okay, the slip of paper was still on his desk. The check had been dated April 2 and signed by an Edwin Wren of Wren & Company, a depositor in the bank's midtown branch. The name hit a tiny bell and I leafed through my notebook—Wren & Company was one of the electrical companies Rose Henderson was exposing. And my hunch began to grow cold, it was like adding pies and snakes—it couldn't be.

MY banker who was having a romance with private eyes waddled back in while I was thinking this over. "Sad news," he said, happily, sitting behind his desk. "Our lawyers advise against giving out this information. I think it's nonsense but I'm not a legal eagle." He raised the slip of paper high, neatly tore it in quarters, and dropped it in his basket, winking at me like a kid as he did.

"Tough, but rules are rules," I said, rolling with the gag and winking back. "Thank you for your time." I headed for the door.

SH RD d ETAOI ETAO EE ESS

It was noon when I hit the bricks and the street was jammed. I dropped into a drugstore and found Wren & Company in the phone book—they were in the mid-fifties on the West Side. It was hot and I was thirsty and figured I'd have lunch first, but when I saw the mob scene at the soda counter I took a subway uptown. Could be Mr. Wren didn't go out for lunch till after one.

He had his own remodeled building, three floors high and not very wide. It was smaller than I'd expected, didn't look like money till I got inside. The office was brightly lit and had huge two-toned photos of the N. Y. C. skyline for wallpaper.

Many Set Age Limits

Churches Aggravating Shortage Of Ministers by Favoring Youth

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press Staff Correspondent

American churches are aggravating their acute shortage of qualified clergymen by making a fetish of youth.

Denominational leaders report a growing tendency among local congregations to set arbitrary age limits in hiring new pastors. Many pulpits committees refuse to consider any applicant over 40. Surveys show that ministers over 50 often have great difficulty in finding employment.

This discrimination against older ministers is hurting the churches, as well as the clergymen who are consigned to the scrap heap in the prime of their professional careers.

The National Council of Churches reported recently that major U. S. Protestant bodies now have a shortage of at least 25,000 ministers. Church membership has been growing much more rapidly than the flow of trained ministers from seminaries. The council estimates that American churches will need upwards of 168,000 additional ministers by 1975 to meet the demands of their ever-expanding enrollment.

Narrow Field

Why—in the face of this serious shortage of professional manpower—do churches sharply narrow their own field of prospective pastors by insisting on youth as an indispensable qualification?

Dr. Auto L. Carr, assistant dean of Yale Divinity School, writing in the current Christian Century magazine, lists three "popular fallacies" that cause churches to shy away from ministers over 50.

Fallacy number one is that the older minister is "a poor health risk." Carr rebuts this notion by pointing to studies of the U. S. Public Health Service, which show that the average incidence of illness is actually higher at age 30 than at age 50.

A second fallacy is that "older men are less efficient and less effective in their work." Carr says this generalization about older persons "has been widely accepted in industry and is often carried over into the thinking of churchmen who are charged with the selection of new ministers."

Refuted By Research

But here, as in the case of the health question, research has refuted the popular idea. Several studies in recent years have shown that older men develop disciplined work habits and an ability to concentrate which more than offsets any slowing down of their reflexes. They also tend to be more conscientious about the performance of their duties, and less distracted by outside interests.

The third fallacy is the belief that a youthful minister is the only kind who can "capture the imagination and win the hearts of the young people of the church."

"The young people themselves would be the first to deny this," Carr says. "If you observe students in secondary schools and in colleges, you will often discover that the teacher they most respect and love, the teacher who is exercising the greatest influence in their lives, is one whose hair has long since turned gray with age."

Carr concludes that churches cannot afford to continue their present prodigal waste of "the tremendous resource we have in our older ministers."

High in the Pyrenees Mountains in the valleys between France and Spain, lies Andorra, one of the tiniest countries in the world. Only 191 square miles in area, Andorra is only one-fifth the size of Rhode Island, the smallest state in the union. Andorra's capital, also called Andorra, is a village of about 700 people; the country's total population is only 6,000.
